Richard:

There are no CDC-issued travel restrictions within the USA. The CDC made this clear at the White House press conference this afternoon.

Best regards,

Tony

Subject: Coronavirus question

We met many years ago, Tony,

...at an event marking Shelly Wolff's 10 year anniversary at New England Medical Center. (I had the distinction of being the first medical intern in that program who he reamed out.)

My question relates to travel restrictions. The current restrictions appear to be quite limited, but several organizations, including Google, Amazon, and the HHMI have restricted, or cancelled, even domestic meetings. As a result of the HHMI cancelation, my own program director indicated his intention to cancel our upcoming Scientific Advisory meeting and, in the non-academic world, (b) (6)

(b) (6) (which is ironic since there are more coronavirus infections in my town of (b) (6) Oregon than there are in all of New York).

In addition to announcing the new travel restrictions, could you also say something publicly about what doesn't need to be restricted? In particular, is domestic travel OK, or not? Does the HHMI know something the rest of us don't?

Sincerely,

Richard Goodman MD PhD
